What it lacked in quantity, it certainly made up for it with quality.

Sunday 16 October saw a small number of members meet at Clarendon, opposite the Richmond RAAF Base. Just a single Austin-Healey was in attendance, the BJ8 of Peter Laurantus. Ray and Muriel Roberts were also there with daughter Janine (who rather startled me when she mentioned that she was retiring not long into the future).

With the abundance of members not present, at the allotted time they headed west into the Blue Mountains along Bells Line of Road. Meanwhile Caroline and I had positioned ourselves at Kurrajong Heights to join the cavalcade and missed them, so followed along a little time later.

Bells Line of Road? If you have never travelled along its length, you have missed one of Australia's great driving roads, even in an everyday car.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Some years ago, the National Delegates (ND) agreed to the standards to be applied when judging the originality of an Austin-Healey. These are the Originality Guidelines developed by the US 'Austin-Healey Concur Registry' with some input from some of our Australian experts. A few Australian cars have been judged to this very exacting standard since the ND's decision and I have great pleasure in congratulating Colin Rule on his absolutely spectacular 100 BN2 which recently has been subjected to minute examination by a team of experts who have many years of in-depth experience of Austin-Healeys. I have been advised that the meticulous examination resulted in a score of 996 out of a possible 1000. When it is realised that some of the four points lost were the result of a small oil leak, we can appreciate just what a meticulous job Colin undertook on everything else. Truly this car is a worthy recipient of the award of 'Gold Standard'. I'd also like to extend thanks and appreciation to the expert team that took the time to make the detailed examination of the car. For those who are not aware, this takes a couple of days to complete and includes very detailed examination of every part of the car, on the ground, on the road and on a hoist. Everything is inspected to see that it is exactly as it would have been when it first emerged from Longbridge factory. So far only four Australian cars have managed to achieve 'Gold', so, once again, congratulations to Colin! I'm reliably advised that there will be more about this car in the next Australian Austin-Healey – can't wait!

Hopefully Colin will be showing his car at the National Rally display which will be held on May 3rd at Pokolbin. To see it of course, you ought to have tickets for the 2023 National Rally, 'Healeys in Greetings and welcome to the November 2022 issue of the Flat Chat Newsletter.

I am going to start this missive with a whinge. I have been putting together Flat Chat in both hardcopy and digital form since 2010. That's fine and I'm not whinging about that, but I do wonder whether all members read it.

When it arrives in your inbox do you scan through it and pick out the things of interest? Do you set aside some quality time to read it through entirely? Perhaps it's just another annoying email that is clicked away with a press of the delete button. Wearing my registrar's hat I do know that many members with conditionally registered vehicles do not read that section of Flat Chat. If they did I wouldn't receive the calls or emails asking what to do when it comes to renewal time.

Frustrating? Yes, especially that preparing Flat Chat each month takes over two days to put together, give or take a little time for mowing, feeding the dog or having coffee while looking at the view. So if you have got this far, it surely means that you might read the remainder. Please do the right thing and read your monthly issue of the Flat Chat Newsletter so then I will feel as if I'm not wasting my time.

Thank you to everyone who sent in words and pics for this issue. People like Jenny Penman and Colin Rule. Big thanks to Kerry McDonald, who is not even a member, but has sent words and pics from an inaugural run by ACT Austin-Healey owners. BIG THANKS to Ronnie Strange as well for his unique article on the Neutral Bay Hillclimb.

At the October meeting Ray Roberts was upstanding and passed on the story about early six-cylinder heads that were modified to fit triple SUs. While designed to fit Austin sedans some were fitted to Austin-Healey 100/6s. Then ensued a discussion that many found informative and enjoyable. One such car won the Modified Class in the AHOC's 2014 concour. Starting on page 24 you will find an article I wrote about that car for the sadly no longer BMC Experience magazine.

In 50 years of Austin-Healey ownership I am quite happy to say that I have never had the pleasure of removing the handbrake handle. A week or so back I really had no choice as while the handbrake was working, there was something amiss with the ratchet mechanism. The button could be easily pushed, but it stuck in place. If you didn't know, there is a compression spring within the chrome plated handle which I thought was broken. With it all out on the bench it was a simple process of dismantling and cleaning. The spring wasn't broken, but it was pretty yucky as was the rest of it and everything around it, including the driveshaft. Another job to do.

Trust you enjoy this issue of the Flat Chat Newsletter, and I look forward to receiving your words and photos for the December issue.

Vice President's Report By Jim Phillips

Just a couple of things to bring to your attention (well three actually).

Chapters

For those members that aren't aware, the club is attempting to create clusters in regional NSW to provide a meeting place for those members who do not live in Sydney. Such a move will enable them to be able to get together, enjoy a run, refreshments, catch up or whatever with like-minded enthusiasts.

Following the successful implementation of a chapter on the Central Coast, one has now come together in the Central West with an event that you would have seen in last month's Flat Chat.

Currently we have one that is about to be formed on the mid-north coast under the "direction" of Phil Lorking. Geoff Golding from Bundanoon was also putting together a plan to co-ordinate events in the Southern Highlands, but unfortunately he has had to cease these plans due to health issues. I have written to the members in the southern highlands looking for expressions of interest in taking on this role and hopefully will be swamped with acceptances.

I have also suggested to those members in the Southern Highlands that they may like to join the Austin-Healey group in the ACT for the Terribly British Day in Queanbeyan on 4th December which other AHOC members might also like to attend.

Annual General Meeting

As advised last month this will be held as part of the Christmas Party. This meeting is to receive the financial reports for the period ended 30 June 2022; receive a report on the committee's activities over the past 12 months and to elect the club's officers for the ensuing 12 months. So that this doesn't impact the seasons celebrations too much, our secretary Julie will be forwarding, with the official notice of the meeting a copy of these reports. Committee members should be nominated and seconded prior to the meeting with only those positions where two or more nominations have been received to be voted on at the meeting. If only one nomination received then there is no need to vote. If no nominations are received then nominations etc. are taken at the meeting. There was a nomination form in last month's and this month's Flat Chat and there will be a copy on the website. Please use these or even an email trail with the appropriate members agreeing to nominating and seconding recorded and sent to the secretary Julie prior to the meeting will create an orderly AGM.

Show or Tell

At last month's meeting Ray Roberts entertained us with some of his experiences and it has been suggested that we bring back an agenda item that we used to have of show and tell where members used to have an item of interest to show to the other members and talk about it. However, there will be a slight variation with it being a 'Show or Tell' and not 'Show and Tell'.

In Gordon's absence this month I will be chairing the meeting and would invite members to either provide a story of interest to the other members, as Ray did, or to bring along an item of interest to tell about. Let's see how it goes and perhaps we can include it in future meetings.

We have no new members this month. However, there is an enquiry from a couple who have recently bought an Austin-Healey and understand they will be joining the Club and placing the Austin-Healey on Conditional Registration.

As you would have seen from last month's Flat Chat, the Christmas Party will be held at the General Meeting on Thursday 1 December. We have also decided to combine it with the Annual General Meeting due to many of the Committee and other members being away for the November meeting.

For bookings for the Christmas Party you can let me know directly or RSVP on the Club's website and make the payment of the tickets into the Club's bank account BSB 032-669 Account: 252564 and in the description type your "surname and Xmas" so that the Treasurer can reconcile the deposits.

The National Rally is filling up fast with 157 registered. Should you be interested in attending, do not delay and send your registration form in as soon as possible to rally2023ahocnsw@hotmail.com and make your payment into the nominated bank account. Once your registration is received and payment made, you will receive an email acknowledging payment and forms to complete for accommodation at Chateau Elan.

Remember, we can only have details correct about you, if you advise us and update them, so keep me informed of your changes of phone numbers, email addresses and home address. Also, don't forget that you can update these on the website yourself or send any changes to membership@austinhealeynsw.com.au

Look forward to seeing you at the next general meeting this Thursday or at another event soon, book in for the Christmas Party now!

Keep safe and well!

Historic Vehicle Registration News

If you have a car on Historic Vehicle Registration you should read this.

Over the last few months, a number of members have delayed renewing their Conditional Registration for such a time that they have not been able to renew it. This meant that it was cancelled, the plates returned, and they had to start again.

From the time you receive your renewal from Services NSW, you actually have almost four months to organise the renewal. Frankly I don't understand how the process can't be undertaken in that period of time.

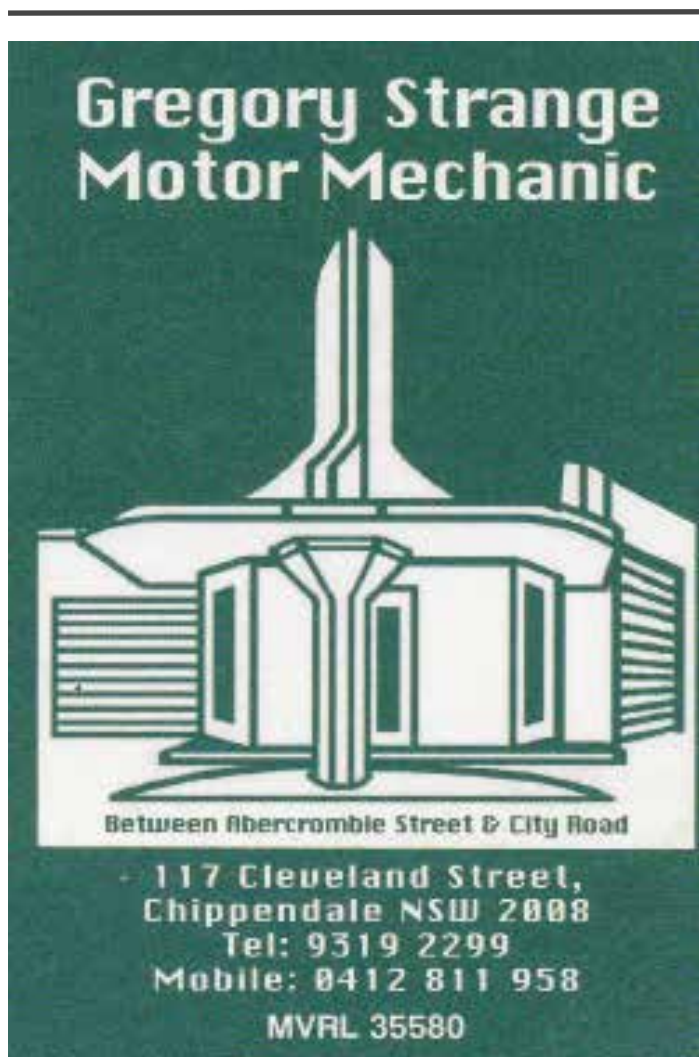

Some members have realised that they are running out of time, they call and make arrangements to deliver their documents. That's okay! Then there are those who post by Express Post and include a self-addressed reply Express Post envelope. That's okay as well! However, I would advise those members who have left their renewal to the last moment that I am not under contract to Australia Post and each set of documents is dealt with the same alacrity. All are processed similarly and are taken to the post box at the same speed. What arrangement you have with the Post Office is between you and them.

As mentioned last month I do wonder if Flat Chat is being read in detail. So once again below are what steps need to take place to renew your Conditional Registration.

- Once you have received the renewal from Transport for NSW, arrange for your vehicle to be inspected for roadworthiness by either an Authorised Inspection Station or one of the volunteer AHOC inspection officers. See page 2 of this Flat Chat for their contact details. Remember all vehicles, including Historic vehicles need to be inspected and passed as roadworthy.
- Complete the left-hand side of the "Historic Vehicle Declaration" and post it to me at my home address (See page 2 of this Flat Chat for my address) along with an indication that your car is roadworthy or a copy of the pink slip. Please include a stamped self-addressed envelope. There is no need to send me the registration certificate. Do not post me the documents by Registered Post as that just slows down the process as I have to go to the post office to accept a registered postal item.
- Once returned, either go to your local Services NSW office to do the renewal or post to Transport for NSW in Parkes. That address can be found on the registration papers.

PLEASE DON'T FORGET THE STAMPED SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

Wanted to put a few words to thank Terry Bancroft in organising his last trip to Tasmania which we had the pleasure in attending, and I think I can say on behalf of everyone else who accompanied us it was most enjoyable.

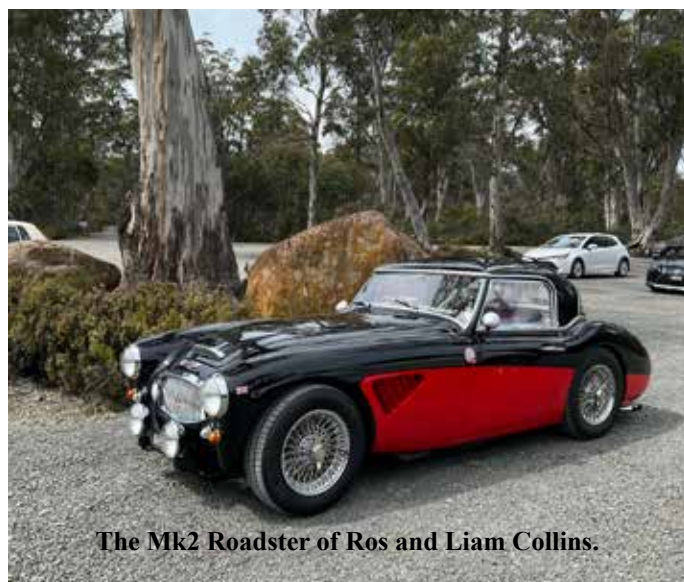

Only one Austin-Healey was on the trip and that was the Mk2 Roadster of Liam and Ros Collins all the way from Queensland. There were 22 of us in total, and the NSW Club members were:

Pat and Terry Bancroft; Colin and Delwyn Goldsmith; Carolyn and John Kent; Jenny and Ross Penman; Angela and Robert Ratcliffe; Greg Strange and Dianne Lawlor

Most of us meet up in Holbrook for the night then made our way down to Melbourne via Yackandandah and Beechworth to board the ferry. Throughout, we all were very fortunate in only having a few wet days which didn't interfere with our travels, missing the terrible floods around Launceston by one day.

We decided not to take our Austin-Healey as we wanted to travel places where the 3000 wasn't suitable and as we had already taken it before. One of those places was to Cockle Creek, the most southern and isolated part of Tassie. We were complemented on having the dirtiest car in the group.

We were on the first return Bass Strait crossing to sail into Geelong instead of Melbourne, with a lot of fanfare and publicity, receiving a show bag when boarding the ferry which contained a certificate, pen, flag and a free drink voucher per passenger.

The Mk2 Roadster of Ros and Liam Collins.

To get to Little Hartley it was along to Bell and turn left on to the Darling Causeway, another interesting driving road. Then at Mount Victoria turn right on to the Great Western Highway and down the mountain, turning left again towards Little Hartley. The road from there was interesting, but thankfully short as there were quite a number of potholes to explore along the way.

We arrived to find three Austin-Healeys looking perfect in the garden setting. The BJ8s of Greg and Kerrie Poole, Greg Tucker and Sandy Matiszik along with Peter's car. The Pooles along with Greg and Sandy had motored from Bathurst, and it was great to meet them. Not long after, Denis Kasza and Susie arrived in his much-used Austin Westminster.

Highfield Gardens? Being avid garden visitors, we thought it wonderful being full of separate garden rooms, water features and places to sit and relax to enjoy your surroundings. Prepared with our wicker basket full of picnic goodies, we enjoyed our lunch within the garden.

A very pleasant day that would have been enjoyed by so many more club members if they had come along.

THE hillclimb

By Ronnie Strange

We've all driven our Austin-Healeys up the Stelvio Pass, Bulli Pass, through the Cutting at Bathurst, up Pikes Peak and along that curly coast road between Nice and Monte-Carlo which is unfortunately ruined by cyclists; nudge too many of them over the cliff to splash into the Mediterranean if they're lucky or splattered onto the rocks below if they're not; you'll get a talking to from the gendarmerie who will shrug a few times and say ne t'inquiet, c'est la vie. (don't worry, that's life. PQ)

These minor iconic drives are OK, but a bit ordinary compared to my favourite stretch of hillclimb formally known as Fish Scale & Whale Oil Path, it was the original route used by Ben Boyd who was into lots of enterprises back in the early 1800s including the sea food industry. Ben and his "helpers" would drag the daily catch up the hill to where he had a fish and chip shop, the site now occupied by the Vodafone shop.

An average day's catch included flathead, barracuda, yellowtail, whale, Parramatta eels, bream and salmon, no, not salmon.

Over the years this path became embedded with fish scales and whale oil and was easy to follow even at night as it glowed in the moonlight. Why Ben didn't have his fish and chip shop down by the Bay is beyond me; dragging all that seafood up the hill, especially the whales must have been hard yakka for him and his "helpers".

Ben was eventually over all this fishy stuff so him and his "helpers" shipped out of Neutral Bay harbour into the Pacific to explore new pastures, no not pastures, new seascapes, obviously giving New Zealand a wide berth; it was slow going all the way to the Solomon Islands because Ben didn't want to wear out the new Kevlar sails on his two masted sloop, so his "helpers" had to pull on the oars all the way there but Ben knew that when they arrived he could do swapsies for a new bunch of "helpers" and continue with his seafaring. However, as we all know the "helpers" and the island natives had other ideas, they gobbled him all up. Allegedly.

Back here the local aboriginal tribes used this slippery path for years to rapidly slide down to the Bay, stopping off at the Cup Cake Shop on the way, no, not stopping there. Anyway It became so well known that tribes from as far away as Newpoor and Terry's Hill and even tribes from the dark side, Rose Bay and Mortlakes would visit for a day's sliding fun; those tribes coming through the many secret tunnels they'd made under the water.

A well-worn track was soon engraved into the landscape and lots of amusement was had for many years. It was cart racing before the wheel was invented! This surely was the inspiration many decades later for the nearby Luna Park.

Many, many decades later the route was used by horse and cart to go up from the harbour to the top, but it was too steep to go down again and of course the horses were having none of it and that's how Neutral Bay became established, there was nowhere else to go!

With the arrival of motor vehicles this route eventually became a road and with Ben Boyd being such a popular bloke in the area and because there was already a sign reading, < BEN BOYD FISH & CHIPS.com.au, half way up the track, it saved North Sydney Council about threepence halfpenny on signage and therefore it naturally became BEN BOYD ROAD.

Before I do the commentary on this brilliant run I'll explain the inherent obstacles associated with it. There are five crossroads, traffic lights, civilian cars, corrugated surfaces, a cliff, a sandstone wall, a school zone and a pedestrian crossing.

The run explained without interruptions.

The approach road, Clark Road, is flat with the bay and the football pitch on your right, (easy going for Ben and his "helpers" back in the day) and on your left is the world-famous Limelight Restaurant. You're in 2nd gear for the rolling start, round the +90 degree right hander where the climb starts, the rest of the run is in 3rd and 3rd O/D, slight right, past the faded red Mustang, slight left, then the first traffic lights with a left turn green arrow, always green, well nearly always, +90degree left (taken from the right hand lane) the inside front wheel will be off the ground, a few slight left and rights before the esses, +90degree right, inside right wheel off the ground, short straight, then past the house with the tin roof, sharp left then another left, few more bends then with the school on your right up and over the humpback pedestrian crossing with all four wheels off the ground then hard braking on the way to the traffic lights which are always red.

I lobbed 3/1000s of a second off the previous run!

The run explained with interruptions:-

ONE. At the first set of lights the normally green left turn arrow is red, so you'll be stuck in the wrong lane and have to go straight ahead.....Run aborted.

TWO. At the first crossroad a motorist in a grey civilian car enters the run and now it's become a walk. Why do they do that? Why don't they go down the hill? Why do they go up, there's no reason I can see.

Why don't they buy a house up here to save themselves the trouble..... Run aborted.

THREE. If you're too fast for the first of the esses you'll go straight on and then over the cliff.....Run aborted.

FOUR. If you're partly around this bend and going too quickly you go into the sandstone wall, but it's covered in moss. Soft sandstone and soft moss. Can there be much damage? Not to the wall anyway..... Run aborted.

FIVE. The left hander (Frank's Corner) after the esses has been re-surfaced and for some reason the road gang have managed to create corrugations throughout the bend. How do they do that? Why? You find yourself vibrating across to the other lane and into oncoming traffic if you're not prepared..... Run aborted.

If you would like your piece of nice road to contain corrugations for some weird reason call North Sydney Council, they're the experts.

SIX. Next comes the best bit. At school release time there are thousands of these beings all over the place. Dozy parents with their gormless urchins in tow wandering across the road. Two long blasts on the horn will get the attention of some of the more alert of them and they'll scamper back to the footpath where they belong, but the remainder just keep strolling across. Even at the suggested 25 kph most of them who ended up on the bonnet are still sprawled across it when approaching the braking area for the lights that are always red, they tumble to the ground then pick themselves up still gawping goggle eyed and open mouthed at their phone, Googling a map because most of them don't know where they live and can't find their way home..... Another run aborted.

ACT Austin-Healey Run to Majors Creek - 16 October 22

by Kerry McDonald

Parking at Tim's home: Tim's BT7, Jon's BN7, Kerry's BN4 & Colin's Bugeye

On a recent overcast but non raining day, three Austin-Healeys belonging to Colin Smeal (with daughter Cherie as passenger), Jon Waterhouse and Kerry McDonald, together with Paul McEwen's Swallow Doretti, headed to Braidwood via Bungendore. We were accompanied by Larry Roux and Lawrie Sorahan in a euro sedan, as Larry's BN1 had an unexpected slow leaking tyre. Fortunately, the road from Bungendore to Braidwood was quite navigable, with the road well posted with warning signs to slow vehicles down for the worst of the potholes.

On arrival at the Braidwood home of our hosts Tim Lewis and Margaret Lyons, we were greeted with a lovely home and a carpark sufficient for our number.

Contrary to this being just an Austin-Healey run, Paul's Doretti was of special interest being a rare car worldwide. During the car's restoration, Paul had replaced the Triumph's four-cylinder engine with a Triumph 2.5 litre six-cylinder. After previously restoring two 100 BN1s, Paul has done an excellent job with his current restoration. To add to the technical discussion, Colin raised the bonnet of his Bugeye and explained the new linkage set up to his Weber carb, a tuning performance enhancement. His little Bugeye certainly performed well on the run that day.

During the morning we were joined by a couple of members of the Braidwood Car Club that Tim is also involved. Ian's 1929 Chrysler 65 Coupe drew lots of attention with its impressive stature, and dicky seat. Certainly a solid and comfortable motor car that Ian regularly drives around town

Margaret's hearty morning tea was much appreciated by all, with us relaxing inside and on the back deck overlooking Gillamatong Creek. Tim explained that the creek had been up over his back lawn in the previous week, but fortunately there had been no threat of flooding to their home.

Following morning tea and viewing of a couple of Tim's classic cars we then departed on a short drive over to Majors Creek for lunch at the historic Elrington Hotel, first established in 1856. Along the way Jon had some fuel flow issues in his 3000 but after a quick roadside stop we were all on our way again. Jon has since mentioned that he expects the problem to have been caused by a loose baffle in his fuel tank that was partially blocking the fuel flow.

The run to Majors Creek was through green rolling hills, providing a pleasant vista and interesting drive. The Elrington Hotel (locally known as the Majors Creek Pub) is certainly the social centre for the town.

It recently changed hands and together with drinks, provides appetising meals at affordable prices. Over lunch, Tim explained the gold mining history of the local area. After a closure, the mine is now back and active again with its tailings being exhumed and sent to China for gold extraction. Apparently, processing the gold locally had environmental issues for the valley and its waterways. The mine with its one kilometre long tunnel certainly has an interesting history.

Being our first car run for our Austin-Healey group, we thank Tim and Margaret for hosting us to their home and local area for this event. Hopefully we will have some further opportunities to exercise our Austin-Healeys in the future.

Thank you to Robert Harrison for sending in this photo of the BMC transporter which carried the prototype MGAs to Le Mans.

Rob asks the question why the BMC Competitions Department didn't loan it to the DHMC in the '60s.

Puzzle Pieces

Words by Patrick Quinn.

Photos by Patrick Quinn or as detailed.

It was Henry Ford who said "History is Bunk!" I can't say that I agree with him as any car is far more interesting if it's got a recorded history. Does a good history make for a more valuable car? Certainly, in some quarters, yes it does. But at the very least, it makes for a more interesting car.

It just makes sense that as our cars increase in age the more history surrounds them. I wonder what old Henry would think of people who research the history of their cars, even the most modest Model T Ford, to the smallest detail?

Of course, just because a car is old doesn't make it of historical interest. But, when a car has passed through the hands of famous or notable people, or has been raced or rallied, then its history does become of interest.

It's fascinating to look at the history of individual cars, and especially when information is received from disparate sources. Take for instance the 1957 Austin-Healey 100/6 BN4/45721 featured on these pages.

The Inheritance

In 2013 a dirty and dusty Austin-Healey 100/6 turned up in Peninsula Sports Car Services in Brookvale, NSW. Of course Austin-Healeys are no stranger to Geoff Morse of Peninsula, but how this came about was a little out of the ordinary.

"I received a call from a Tim Berriman," Geoff explained. "He said that he had inherited an Austin-Healey from his uncle's estate. Tim didn't know what model it was or much else, but he wanted to know how much it would cost to fix it up and get it running. A typical 'how long is a piece of string' situation. He then sent me some photos of the car in a garage with it covered with all sorts of rubbish. I suggested that I could arrange for a tow-truck to go and pump up the tyres and drag it over here for me to have a look at. Anyway, that's what happened."

"It would have been around May 2013 when it arrived at the workshop and I recognised it immediately as the ex-Peter Berriman car that I raced against during the early 1980s. Being painted in a fairly distinctive blue over gold it couldn't have been anything else. I asked Tim if he had any history of the car and he said that they had found some but threw it out just that morning. I suggested that he should go back to see what's there, as things like the CAM's logbook were important. He did this and found a fairly extensive bunch of papers, plus later I found a scrunched up

"When it arrived, the first thing we did was to get it running. The oil was clean and the engine turned over easily by hand, so with a little fresh petrol it started. We had it running for about 20 minutes and it ran smoothly without any overheating. Not long after we got the go ahead from Tim to tidy it up and get it going."

It was about this time that I heard from a friend, Eric Rudd who had retired from his company, Butler and Rudd, that there was a 100/6 at Peninsula Sports Cars with an unusual cylinder head and a bulge in the bonnet.

A couple of phone calls later I was speaking to Tim Berriman who told me the story that his uncle Peter Berriman had bought the car during the late 1970s, repainted it to blue over gold, and over time used the car extensively on the road and also on the circuit.

Peter became deeply involved in steam locomotives, rolling stock and so on and their preservation, and in 1986 the 100/6 was parked in a unit garage in the Sydney suburb of Randwick and didn't turn a wheel for over 27 years. Sadly, Peter Berriman passed away in 2013, but left the car to his nephew, Tim, in his will.

A Separate Quest

About a year earlier I received a couple of photos from David Blanch at Autopics of a mysterious pair of racing Austin-Healeys: a white 100 and a black over red 100/6.

I easily recognised the venue as Silverdale Hillclimb, in the lower Blue Mountains west of Sydney; however the cars, apart from the marque were not recognisable. While the NSW registration numbers of the cars were clear enough (BJZ 444 and BTS 525 respectively), it is difficult to track vehicle history this way, as such numbers change so often. However, there was something a little different with the 100/6 as, not only was it wearing racing circles, but it also had a long bulge in the left side of the bonnet.

So, the photos went into the Austin-Healey Owners Club of NSW magazine, Flat Chat, in the hope that someone would recognise the cars. In February 2013 I heard from Queensland long-term Austin-Healey owner Barry Darley, who let me know that it was him driving the white 100 and his friend Peter "Pedro" Owen behind the wheel of the 100/6. Barry, who lived in Sydney at the time, also confirmed that it was Silverdale Hillclimb and the year was 1962. Sadly Peter Owen succumbed to cancer a few years back.

Barry let on that Peter had been a fortunate young man, coming from a well-to-do family, and his father presented him with the 100/6 on his 18th birthday, in September 1958, when the car was less than a year old.

The 100/6 was originally painted white and one of the first things Peter did was to paint it black over red. Both Barry and Peter were keen on motorsport and over the next few years ran their cars at such circuits as Oran Park, Amaroo Park, Hume Weir and Warwick Farm.

From Barry's words it was clear that "Pedro" Owen was starting to get serious with his car, fitting it with a Hedley McGee camshaft, polished and ported cylinder head and something that was quite radical for the time, tuned suspension by specialists Allan Heasman, along with five-inch-wide wheels when even Formula 1 cars only had 4½" rims.

Barry recalls that apart from racing his 100/6, "Pedro" was also a familiar sight in his car around Sydney's Northern Beaches, and also along New South Head Road in the eastern suburbs, "testing" the car prior to competition events.

Barry was also able to explain the mystery of the bulge in the bonnet.

Gurdon Cylinder Head

The engine fitted to early six-cylinder Austin-Healeys was the 2,639cc C-series that was also fitted to the Austin A90, Morris Isis and Wolseley 6/90 sedans. It did receive a few tweaks that made it slightly more suitable for a sports car, like twin SU H4 carburettors, but in standard form it was hard pressed to push out more than 102bhp. This was due to the less than efficient cylinder head design; in particular the inlet, where the manifold was cast integral to the cylinder head itself. This was fine for a family sedan that's meant to carry a load, but perhaps wasn't too stimulating in a sports car that weighed 1,098kg.

Barry Gurdon was a Bathurst-based Austin, and later BMC, dealer who put his racing where his heart laid. He not only sold Austin cars, but also raced them, especially at his local circuit, Mt Panorama. Gurdon's competition cars included anything Austin, from a supercharged A50 through to a very quick Austin A90.

Gurdon also ran a factory-sponsored

The poster found in the boot.

Under the dirt, the car was in remarkably good condition, but still needed a full resto.

Austin Lancer in the early Armstrong 500s held at Phillip Island and was among a group of Bathurst-based businessmen who were influential in having the Armstrong-sponsored 500 move to Mt Panorama, where it remains to this day. For many years Gurdon's dealership was the sight of post-race scrutineering of the winning and placed cars in the Great Race. Later, he would become mayor of Bathurst and Barry Gurdon Drive, that runs parallel to Mountain Straight and leads to the back of McPhillamy Park, is named after him.

Gurdon was also well aware of the limitations presented by the C-series cylinder head layout and set about making modifications for improved breathing. In essence, these modifications included the complete removal of the integral manifold and the welding in of a narrow cast iron plate, complete with three separate fabricated inlet manifolds. Such a modification permitted the fitting of triple SU carburettors. This, when coupled with other engine alterations, allowed for a substantial increase in power.

The Barry Gurdon cylinder head was available to anyone who wanted to buy one, but there was a small hitch. The head was designed to fit under the bonnet of an Austin/Morris/Wolseley sedan with more than adequate room. However, if it was fitted to an Austin-Healey it meant that a bulge had to be let into the bonnet to clear the carburettors.

Peter Owen bought one of Gurdon's cylinder heads, and had the requisite bonnet bulge added.

Joining the Dots

Peter Owen's Austin-Healey had developed a reputation for being a very quick, but hairy, motor car. It did, however, handle very well indeed. By this stage Peter had opened a tyre retail outlet, trading under his own name first at the Sydney suburb of Artarmon and later at Brookvale. It was a beacon for all likeminded sporting and racing car enthusiasts. Later he opened a further outlet at Woolloomooloo, which he called Spinning Wheel Tyres. This company still exists in the suburb of Waterloo and is now part of JAX Tyres.

According to Barry Darley, "Pedro" lent his Healey to a friend and, as inevitably seems to happen, it was damaged in an accident. Additionally, he discovered first Lotus cars and then TVR; with him becoming the agent for the latter. The Austin-Healey was sold in 1966 and from there the trail went cold. However, it wasn't his only Austin-Healey, as later he purchased a 100S and raced that.

When the mysterious Berriman Austin-Healey arrived at Peninsular Sports Cars, I wondered about the unusual bonnet that Tim and Geoff described to me. Could this be the "long lost" car of Peter "Pedro" Owen.

I suggested they look to see if any traces remained of a black over red colour scheme. A few days later a text was received from Tim advising that Geoff Morse had found traces of black and red paint beneath the blue and gold exterior.

It was agreed that the car was the ex-"Pedro" Owen 100/6 which presented a bitter sweet situation for Tim Berriman, for he had to decide between just getting the car going in the form from when his uncle owned it, or have it restored back to the condition when Peter Owen used and raced it. I was pleased when I heard that he chose the latter.

Another interesting piece of the puzzle was found when checking on the car's chassis number. From the existing Austin warranty cards, we can see that chassis BN4/45721 was delivered new to Melbourne, and sold by Austin Distributors to a Mr M Hastie in November 1957.

Austin Distributors, or AusDis as it became known from the early 1950s was very much a family-centred company. M Hastie was Malcolm Hastie, whose father was the chairman of directors of AusDis. Malcolm also had substantial notoriety in his own right, as he had represented Australia in water polo at the 1950 Empire Games in Auckland and the 1952 Helsinki Olympic Games.

How the car got from Hastie in Melbourne to Peter Owen, via his dad, in Sydney is not known, but it may just have easily been sold through one of the Austin Dealerships or privately.

Restoration

"We found all sorts of colours with the car," Geoff Morse added. "Under the front guard there were close to seven different colours – white, red, blue, black, red again, which all helped to do the final identification. The restoration was reasonably straightforward, as we decided to keep as much of the original patina as possible. There was a little bit of rust plus some quite horrible accident damage that had been poorly repaired. However some we left as it was, such as ripples in the rear inner guards as that was part of the car's history."

"The dash, apart from cleaning it and making sure everything worked, we left as original. The steering wheel was left, except for a little Estapol. Not so the same with the upholstery, as it was completely renewed with a trim kit from Moss Motors. When the car arrived it had disc wheels all round and as part of the restoration it was converted to black painted wires."

"As for the engine, we pulled the head off, as it had a broken stud. We had Mike Dyer service the head and all the head studs were replaced. The bearings were checked, as were the bores, and everything was almost as new. Obviously, everything was cleaned and painted and a new clutch was fitted. The gearbox and differential were both in good order, but of course were cleaned and repainted. The suspension and brakes were rebuilt throughout with new bushes, seals and so on. Everything received new paint throughout. There was also a new wiring loom."

"Mechanically the car was in good condition," Geoff said. "Even the triple SUs; however we did put new kits in them all. All up the car was here for probably close to twelve months. It was stripped right down to a bare chassis and sent away to Norm Baxter at Nepean Classic Cars in Penrith. Norm used to have a shop here at Brookvale, but when he heard that Nepean Classic Cars were closing he paid a visit to buy some equipment, but ended up buying the complete business."

"When it was finished, we entered the car in the Austin-Healey Owners Club 2014 concours where it received the Best Modified Car prize. My offsider Richard Caller just fell in love with the car and said that if he had the money he would buy it. Both Richard and I were very proud of the work and the result. It was a great car to drive and although it had the 2.6 litre engine it performed extremely well."

Geoff went on to say that the work undertaken on the car was probably more than Tim Berriman wanted to do; which to me sounds like a normal restoration. Notwithstanding this, Tim decided to put the car on the market and after a little time it sold to a new owner in Victoria.

However, it wasn't destined to stay there and came back to Sydney to be sold by the Classic Throttle Shop. It has recently been sold to a Sydney owner where it remains at the present time.

History Enlarged

Subsequent to the above information, Iain McPherson, the highly respected registrar of the Austin-Healey Owners Club of Victoria, has researched the competition history of the car. He found that beside Silverdale, "Pedro" Owen competed in the car at Castlereagh Sprints, Catalina Park and Warwick Farm. Then, in the hands of a subsequent owner, at Lakeview Hillclimb in the ACT and finally, in Peter Berriman's ownership, at Adelaide International Raceway, Collingrove Hillclimb, Mallala, Lakeside, Oran Park and Amaroo Park.

Maybe even old Henry Ford might agree that history is worth recording.
